Interviewing Pilotto

Pilotto and his design partner Christopher De Vos have their own studio, with scrupulously ordered mood boards of digital computer-aided designs, and wide, high tables with samples spread across them. It's a far away from the Vyner Street cupboard room where I met them five years ago, when they represented a young label singled out by Time Out as one to watch for spring/summer 2007. Back then, half-Austrian, half-Italian Pilotto and half-Belgian, half-Peruvian De Vos had just secured a first buyer for their exquisitely printed collection – Seven, an adventurous boutique in New York. Now, the brand has more than 30 buyers including Liberty, Harvey Nichols and Colette in Paris, and counts Samantha Cameron and Michelle Obama as fans.

How have you made the transition from the tiny label of five years ago to the global brand you're managing today?

Peter Pilotto: 'A lot of that is thanks to the Centre for Fashion Enterprise which supports and incubates young fashion businesses. It gave us security – two years not to worry about rent. It gave us a studio, the use of the sewing machines and facilities. And, very importantly, it also gave us a lot of advice about accounting. As a young designer, you don't consider the fact that if you sell a lot in a season, that can be the riskiest moment. It can mess you up in January when you have to pay your manufacturers but you haven't delivered to clients yet. It can all be over if you don't manage the moment right – that's what the CFE is there for. Young designers just think: Great, I sold a lot. And not: 'I'm going to have to pay people a lot of money before anyone pays me.'

You've always shown in London. Do you feel under pressure to go to Paris and get access to a different kind of buyer and exposure?

CDV: 'No. Not any more. We get the buyers here. I think the buyers go to every fashion week and make up their minds while they travel. Then they like to make their orders in Paris at the end of it. Even the London stores do that.'

PP: 'We are happy in London – the support has been amazing. That's why London Fashion Week is so incredible – because all these young designers are able to show and start a business, which would be almost impossible in Paris financially. Here, because of the CFE it's easy. We've been through a struggle, but still, we're managing.'

Do you feel like there's a kind of uprising in British fashion at the moment?

Both: 'Totally!'

CDV: 'I think it's exciting that people are now staying in London, and keeping it strong. People seem to be coming back. Also, it's London Fashion Week, but a lot of us are from everywhere.'

Yes, I was going to ask about that. How did a label with a Belgian, Italian, Peruvian and Austrian background come to be seen as British?

PP: 'Because we're here – we're a London-based label. We started it here right after I graduated.'

CDV: 'We also manufacture a lot in London. Yes, it's expensive; the things we make here are the expensive, technical pieces. We used to manufacture everything here but now for some of the separates we're more careful of the cost.'

A 7 Pilotto and Christopher have made a great career for a short time.

Thank you for your letter. It's a pleasure to receive it. I agree pocket money is always not enough but you should think of it yourself. It's your duty not your parents to support you with money. If you need more you can find some week-end or part-time job. It'll help you not to waste your time and think of your expenses.

And do not forget about your exams. Arrange your time to be able to prepare well for each subject. I usually use the help of my sister who asks me questions so that's the way I revise the material. I try to do my best as I do care for my results.
